Honors Program
Investing in the Individual Student

Two Years That Will Change Your Life

Georgia Perimeter College
Two Years That Will Change Your Life
What Is the Honors Program?

Are you academically strong? Are you creative? Do you have a passion for learning and engaging in collaborative intellectual inquiry? The Honors Program is your home at Georgia Perimeter College.

In the GPC Honors Program, you will attend small classes, typically limited to 15. You can take Honors courses in most disciplines, and the Honors Program will mentor you through your two-year associate degree. It will prepare you for top universities and colleges in the region and country—places where our Honors students flourish.

What Are the Benefits?

• Enrollment in the largest and most active two-year college Honors Program in Georgia
• Honors recognition on all transcripts and at graduation
• Honors distinction in selected majors
• Honors Program certificate or degree
• Merit-based Honors Program scholarships
• Transfer scholarship program to four-year institutions
• Advisement and counseling through the Honors Program
• Transfer recommendations to Honors Programs and Honors Colleges in senior institutions
• Priority registration
• Travel to Honors conferences
• Enrollment in Honors courses
• Emphasis in Honors courses on internationalizing the curriculum, service learning or interdisciplinary studies

After Graduation

The GPC Honors Program has established a network of articulation agreements with four-year colleges and universities to guarantee GPC student admission into Honors Programs and to award guaranteed transfer scholarships.

What Students Say

“The smaller classes and friendly environment at GPC were definitely a plus. Also, because GPC had the Honors Program, I felt that the quality of education I would receive should be the same, if not better, than at a large university. And it turned out it was worth it.”

~ Hina Mehmoood, 2006 GPC graduate
Pharmacy Major, University of Georgia

“The benefits of the Honors Program are smaller classes, lots of individual attention, challenging curriculum, and the chance to be in an environment where my opinions were valued. I had to actually improve on the quality of work that I produced.”

~ Tristan Peters, 2002 GPC graduate
B.A., University of New Mexico, Honors Program,
J.D., Northeastern University

“I had always thought that my writing struggles meant I could never be a great writer, but the Honors Program taught me how some of the greatest writers in history struggled with their writing. Taking Honors classes gave me the tools I needed to write and present exceptionally well despite my anxieties.”

~ Chris Davis, 2007 GPC graduate
Pursuing double major in Computer Science and Psychology, Georgia Tech

What Teachers Say

“The teachers are great. The Honors Program is wonderful. When you go to the GPC Honors Program, you don’t have anything to envy with other colleges and universities because the Honors Program is tough. If you go through it, you will be good.”

~ Jean-Francois Onivogui, 2008 GPC graduate
Georgia State Honors Program Student of the Semester, Fall 2009

“Teaching a class of intellectually curious, hardworking students is a joy. The fact that the class is smaller and there is a great deal of interaction with the professor and among the students only adds to the stimulating atmosphere. For a professor, it doesn’t get much better than that.”

~ Susan McGrath
History, GPC Clarkston Campus
(Ph.D., Emory University)

“In my regular sociology classes, I teach sociology. In my Honors sections of sociology, the class does sociology.”

~ Joe Cannon Jr.
Sociology, GPC Alpharetta Center
(Ph.D., Cornell University)
